

Opportunities to be taught and experience careers learning are embedded within the Alma curriculum. It forms part of everyday practice and ranges from taking any and all opportunities to develop an individual's or group's knowledge and understanding of careers to ensuring that the pupils have rich experiences within which careers learning, development and wellbeing is a focus. For phase three and four of the curriculum the student's personal development and effectiveness is a focus and they have individualised targets on their personalised learning plans focused around their readiness for life after Linwood. We use our long-term planning to reflect opportunities for careers learning within the Alma curriculum structure and offer opportunities for our pupils to gain an awareness of the community offer where appropriate.
